ENGLE

John W. Engle, 88, of Pascagoula, Miss., passed away May 26, 2006, in Pompano Beach, Fla. He was born in Hummelstown, Pa., Feb. 21, 1918. He received his Bachelors degree from Lebanon Valley College in 1939. He served in the Air Force in World War II. Following WWII, he completed his Masters degree from the University of Pennsylvania Wharton School of Business. Following retirement from Ingalls Shipbuilding of Pascagoula, Miss., he began a tutoring program at the First United Methodist Church. He also organized Wednesday morning Chapel services at the Singing River Hospital of Pascagoula. He received several prestigious awards for his civic activities including those from Chevron Refineries and Ageless Heroes from Blue Cross-Blue Shield.

His wife, Mary Elizabeth Engle, Pascagoula, Miss.; his daughter, Paula Engle, Coconut Creek, Fla. and his sister, Esther Marie Hivner, Hummelstown, Pa., survive him.

To honor John, a scholarship fund has been established in his name at the First United Methodist Church of Pascagoula.

assignment editor at the New York Mirror, Middle East chief of the Foreign Broadcast Intelligence Service and as an ABC radio correspondent in the Middle East.

In 1962, he wrote "Cast a Giant Shadow: The Story of Mickey Marcus, Who Died to Save Jerusalem," a best-selling biography of the West Point graduate who was a military adviser to Israel during the 1948 War of Independence. Kirk Douglas starred in a 1966 film based on the book.

His 1969 book, "Sabra," focused on a dozen Israeli fighters in the 1967 Six Day War.

Berkman's screen credits included co-writing the story for the 1951 comedy "Bedtime for Bonzo," starring Ronald Reagan. He also co-wrote the screenplay for the 1957 film "Fear Strikes Shreveport, daughter Madeleine Bergeron said.

Bergeron said her mother, Juliana Tutko Sardisco, suffered a mild heart attack, apparently from the stress resulting from her husband's death. Juliana Sardisco, 69, is recovering, Bergeron said.

Sardisco's professional football career lasted four years, and it was interrupted by military service. It included short stints with the San Francisco 49ers and Washington Redskins in 1956, his rookie season. He then served in the Air Force for two years before returning to pro football with Calgary in the Canadian Football League in 1959. He played guard for the Patriots from 1960-62.

Sardisco was inducted into the Louisiana Sports Hall of Fame in 2004.
